Rule Statement

Texas A&M University selectively and judiciously awards honorary doctorates of letters to individuals of exceptional academic, scholarly, artistic and/or philanthropic accomplishment in order to bring honor and recognition to Texas A&M University and to identify persons whose accomplishments and service to humanity can be considered exemplary.

Official Rule/ Responsibilities/ Process

1. GENERAL

Professional associations that are created by the process of awarding of an honorary degree are a means of aiding the University's community in setting and achieving its mission. The Committee on Honorary Degrees will actively solicit nominations from all academic units. Candidate nominations that are not selected will be communicated in a timely manner to the nominator and nominating body, together with guidance as to whether the committee sees merit in considering the nomination in subsequent award cycles.

2. CRITERIA

Texas A&M University awards honorary doctorate degrees principally to individuals who have distinguished themselves in sustained scholarly activity in the arts, letters, science, technology, or service to humanity. An honorary doctorate also may be awarded to an individual from industry, government, communications, or another public arena who has distinguished himself or herself through nationally or internationally significant contributions.

3. RESTRICTIONS

3.1 Honorary doctorates recognize an individual, not an office or position. So far as possible, there will be an effort to ensure that the persons honored represent a variety of fields of endeavor. No more than four honorary degrees will be approved for any one commencement.. Honorary degrees are particularly encouraged at the spring graduation ceremonies, but are regarded as a valuable component of every commencement, enriching all participants. In all cases, the recipient must be present to receive the award.

- 3.2 Honorary doctorates are not awarded:

 - 3.2.2 posthumously
